

INVESTIGATION INTO TOWN'S AFFAIRS WAS A REGULAR FARCE

Petitioners Ask Series of Simple Questions Which Commissioner Calls on Clerk to Answer—No Charges Made—Judge Says Finding Will Be Along Shortly

The much talked of investigation into the town's affairs was held last Wednesday before Judge Carpenter, who was appointed as a commissioner by the provincial government at the request of several ratepayers of the town.

Much interest was taken in the affair by the citizens of the town and as a result when the time for opening the investigation arrived the hall was well filled.

In opening Judge Carpenter explained the object of his visit and told the petitioners it devolved upon them to produce all the evidence they had concerning matters to be investigated. It was not his intention, he said, to act as a solicitor for either party, but as the petitioners were not represented by counsel he would allow them all possible latitude in order that all questions might be thoroughly investigated.

In response to the judge's request that any of the petitioners who had any questions to ask Mr. Flath, one of the fathers of the petition appeared. He said he had circulated the petition at the request of several of the ratepayers as there appeared to be a suspicion that things were not as they should be. He then presented the judge with a sheet of paper containing a list of questions prepared by Mr. Chadwick, which the petitioners wanted investigated.

After looking over the questions the judge said he thought the town clerk should be able to answer most of them. He therefore gave the list to Mr. Courtneil with instructions to look up the necessary papers and answers and then adjourned the investigation till 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Among the questions asked were some dealing with the school board, then the commission on the part of the town, and as to whether it was not within his jurisdiction at the present sitting. Other questions dealing with by-laws passed by the burgesses in due form were not considered, as the judge did not see why questions approved by the ratepayers should be investigated.

Some of the questions were very silly to put before a commission and might have been considered very amusing if it were not for the fact that such taking up of the town of busy and important provincial officials.

A sample of the non-sensical questions submitted to the commission were: Does the town need more policemen? Did the town pay too much for the police equipment? Does the town need many more clerks in the office? What does the town's office furniture consist of? Are any members of the Realty Company shareholders in the Shoe Factory? Could the water works system be installed for less than the price it has been paid for, and so on.

To solve the problem the judge said the commissioner would have to "consider of calling in the police." He thought the commissioners were the best judges of these things and if the ratepayers were not satisfied they had their recourse at election time.

After Town Clerk Courtneil had answered all the questions on the paper to the evident satisfaction of the judge and the leaders for the petitioners, Mr. Flath, with an air of a crown prosecutor in a million dollar case, proceeded to cross-examine the witnesses in which he unearthed the horrible truth that at some time in 1914 the town had purchased a typewriter from the Canadian-American real estate firm, of which Mr. Bott was a member.

Although not called upon, Mayor Bott volunteered to give evidence in this connection. He said that at the time he took office there had been no audit of the town's affairs and as a result no line of credit could be arranged at the bank. There was no money in the treasury and in order to keep the men on the town staff going both Councilor Lydiatt and himself

St. Ambrose W. A. Entertain Delegates

St. Ambrose parish hall was a lively spot last evening between 5 and 6 o'clock when the ladies of the congregation, entertained about 120 of the delegates who were attending the W. A. convention in Medicine Hat.

About 4300 a procession of 15 or 20 automobiles conveyed the delegates from Medicine Hat and on arriving at the church they were conducted to the hall where the ladies had in readiness a number of the delectable afternoon tea ever given in town. After lunch an inspection was made of the church and the visitors were lost in their praise of the excellent building and surroundings. A short evening service was afterwards held in the church by the vicar.

Among the visitors present were Bishop and Mrs. Harding from Regina, Rural Dean and Mrs. Davis from Medicine Hat, Mrs. Fawcett, of Regina, the new diocesan president, and Mrs. and Miss Gordon, of Indian Head.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the delegates left for Medicine Hat where from there outside points took train for their respective homes.

Uniteds Lose in Charity Cup Game

The Uniteds played a league game in the charity cup series in the last Tuesday evening against the Calles of that city. The game was a good one from start to finish but the Uniteds were unfortunate in losing out by four goals to two.

At half time the Calles had scored three goals and the Uniteds failed to locate the nets at all. They started the second half, however, with a rush and in consequence their half time had scored twice. They kept up a series of brilliant rushes and for a time it looked as though they would win the game but just before time was called the Calles landed a goal which was a big surprise to the spectators.

Shortly after the whistle blew for time, leaving the Calles winners by 4 to 2.

Two Redcliff Boys In Casually List

For the first time since the war started the casualty list issued this week contained the names of two Redcliff boys who were killed in action. They were among the first to enlist from Redcliff and went to the front with the first contingent. Neale is reported as only slightly wounded, while Bradley is reported as seriously wounded. No word has been received from either of them lately. A Henderson is also said to have been wounded but we have not yet seen his name in the list. Word to that effect was received by letter.

William Jennings Bryan, three times democratic candidate for the presidency of the United States, resigned Tuesday as secretary of state. His resignation was accepted by the President. The cabinet then approved a response which had been received from the German government in reply to the Lusitania note. A dispatch to the Chicago Herald Tribune from Berlin says: "President Wilson and his cabinet considered the known fact that German interests, reported backed by the German government, are negotiating for the purchase of the great gun and munition works plants in the United States."

"Secretary McKaid, of the treasury department, laid the matter before the cabinet. He had information from secret service agents of the government who have been following these German activities for several weeks."

Prospects Good For Another Order

The trucks now in Calgary are giving entire satisfaction and are attracting the attention of the wholesale and retail firms of that city. Already several inquiries have come from these firms and prospects are good for placing some of them. The Hudson's Bay Company sent a representative down here this week to look over the trucks and get prices. He was well pleased with the ton and a half trucks and thought there was no doubt this firm would order some of them at once.

Mrs. Carl Klein Dies Suddenly

A very sad death occurred about 16 miles north of here last Tuesday, when Mrs. Carl Klein suddenly passed away. During her illness she was taken to the hospital where she was attacked with convulsions and with all that medical aid could do when the doctor arrived. The remains were brought here and were buried in the cemetery here and a funeral was held at Ashley, N. D., the deceased's home. Mrs. Klein was only 22 years of age and many a fine child only a short time ago with her husband, where they took up a homestead.

A HUGE JOKE.

Of all the huge jokes we have been called upon to record the investigation held here last Wednesday was the hugest. It was a joke from start to finish. It was a joke from the skin to the core and from the core back to the spin again. It was a joke in mind, tooth and nail; a joke in every particular. Ye gods and little fishes it surely was a joke.

Although the commission has not as yet given its decision the Review prides itself with having enough experience, enough brains, enough decision, fairness and equity, and enough knowledge to venture the prediction that the commission's finding will be, in a word, that the granted ratepayers have tried to make a mountain out of a mole hill; that there was nothing to it, and that so far as the commission is concerned there was nothing to warrant a commission at all.

So far as we can figure out it was the handiest farce that was ever pulled off in any civilized, enlightened country. Every question submitted to be the commission for investigation was answered by the town clerk and could have been answered by the clerk or council at any time to any ratepayer who wished to take the trouble to make the inquiry, without throwing the town into this turmoil and handicapping the council in their financial arrangements by instituting that the town's affairs were not what they should be.

And who is to blame for the whole thing? None other than ex-Councillor Flath, who, according to his statements before the commission, was to be the lamb sacrificed on the altar of martyrs to see that a petition was circulated and properly signed by a sufficient number of ratepayers, asking that a commission be appointed to investigate into the affairs of the town which he as a councillor in 1914 evidently had not the brains or the bowels to look into himself. None other than ex-Councillor Flath, who in the election for the 1914 council was the self-styled modern Moses who was to lead the people of Redcliff out of a land of bondage into a land of peace and plenty. But alas! this modern Moses like the Moses of old, fell by the wilderness and perished in the wilderness before his life's work had been accomplished. His followers thus deserted, cried out for a Joshua, and there came Joshua, and verily there came forth Black, Devitt and Robertson to take up the work from where the modern Moses left off. With the great David as their leader the three Joshuas, stripped of all modern armour, went forth from corner to corner, armed only with their tongues, and made battle against the great Goliath of graft and corruption. But alas, the noble 23 kickers were again doomed to disappointment for the three Joshuas failed to make mention of their grievances before the councils of the ungody.

Nothing daunted these noble 23, remembering that their modern Moses was still in the flesh, sent emissaries out to the agencies and the syndicates of the oil fields, which in high tone Calgary, with instructions to implore him to come back to the people who loved him so dearly and see them through their trying times. This modern Moses, profligate by the experience of the Moses of old, and not willing to allow the Joshua to rob him of the credit for the consummation of the work which he had so nobly begun, hid himself back to his little band of followers to help them pave the way for a royal commission.

The commission came, the commission heard and the commission departed. And so did this modern Moses, leaving behind him the three Joshuas, very much sadder but very much wiser men.

THE BUTTER MARKET.

One day this week the Review was visited by several farmers who said they could not find a market for their butter in town and as a result they were compelled to take it back home again.

On hearing this information we naturally made up our minds this was a serious situation and one that required some investigation and, if possible, some adjustment. On investigation, however, we found that things were not so serious as they at first seemed. The whole thing was a matter of price. The week previous these same farmers had sold their butter for some 22c to 24c, and thought they should get the same price this week. In the meantime butter has been going down every day until now it is being sold for 18c, 19c and 20c. Rather than take this price the farmers in question said they would take it home again.

The local merchants are not responsible for the market price of butter. The price of butter, like everything else, is regulated by supply and demand. The cause of the gradual and steady drop in butter is obvious. Pastures couldn't be better than they are now and as a result cows are giving almost twice as much milk. As a natural consequence twice as much butter is being produced on the market and today towns which previously experienced difficulty in getting enough butter to supply the local demand are now shipping it out to larger centres where cold storage plants are paying 15c and 16c a pound for it. It is unreasonable for farmers to expect to get more for their butter here than is being paid at other points.

The merchants could not stand this as they would suffer from their town customers and if they charged them more than merchants in neighboring towns were charging.

Redcliff is like many other places this year, as the supply of butter from the surrounding country is much greater than the local demand. As a result the surplus stock will have to be shipped to the large firms who have the cold storage. These firms grade the butter and pay according to grade.

Under these conditions it should be an easy matter for the farmers to make some arrangements with the local merchants to collect and ship it when they have enough on hand for a shipment.

KILL THE WEEDS.

One way to obtain increased production on Canadian farms this year is to put forth extra effort in combating weeds. This is within the reach of every farmer, and combined action will result in greatly increased yields of field crops and more lasting progress toward weed eradication.

The weed question has received considerable attention from the Lands Committee of the Dominion of Conservation and some facts have been revealed which show the real seriousness of the problem. Many of the most weeds are getting ahead of the farmers and, unless methods of control are put into practice at once, will gain the upper hand.

In 1910, 100 farms were visited in each of the prairie provinces, and on 100 per cent of the Manitoba farms wild oats were found. In Saskatchewan 75 per cent, and in Alberta 81 per cent reported wild oats, while in 1912 a still larger number reported this weed, showing that it was travelling westward at a rapid rate.

Farmers can not afford to ignore the danger from weeds. Yet there is a lamentable lack of concerted action to destroy these enemies of crop production. Land is too valuable. In Canada for owners to permit 25 per cent of its production power to be destroyed by weeds. It is time that all who are interested in agriculture realized the situation. Steps must be taken to rid the soil of the roots and the seeds. Co-operation between farmers in the same community and between farmers, the Experimental Farms and stations, and the governments, both Federal and Provincial is necessary before satisfactory results can be secured. Only by continuing the fight to the end with method and thoroughness, can these enemies be held in check and ultimate freedom from noxious weeds be achieved.

Probably never before in this district were weeds so far advanced at this time of year as they are today; yet so far as we can learn no weed inspector has, as yet been appointed by the provincial government for this district. This is a matter which should be attended to at once, as it will only be a matter of a short time now till weeds will be going to seed.

SHOULD TAKE PRECAUTION.

According to the latest papers whooping cough is prevalent at this city. The medical health officer attributes the numerous cases to the carelessness of parents in allowing their children to run around with other children and taking no precaution to safeguard the public. There are, we understand, a few cases of whooping cough here in Redcliff and some are complaining that the proper precautions are not taken by parents here either. This carelessness and thoughtlessness on the part of parents whose children have contagious diseases is criminal, as it might easily lead to the death of some other person's child.

Whooping cough with its complications, ranks one of the first place diseases and thoughtlessness among acute infections, as a cause of death among children. It is most contagious in the early stages before the "whoop" is developed, though it may be contagious at all through the course. The great difficulty in its control is that people seldom consult a physician, and so the cases are unreported, and also from the fact that a child may be the source of infection for two weeks, or more, before the "whoop" develops, and may have in this time communicated the disease to a large number of the public and the dangers of whooping cough and its complications should be emphasized.

As stated in the Review some time ago whooping cough is among the diseases which parents must report to the health officer, and failure to do this leaves the parents liable to a heavy fine.

THE FIRST AIR BATTLE.

WON BY CANADIANS.

For the first time on record a Zeppelin in the air has been destroyed by an aviator in an aeroplane. Leslie A. J. Warford, a young Canadian aviator, in the royal aviator, wild cat aeroplane only this summer, has performed the feat, and is somewhere within the British lines, while the Zeppelin lies in ruins on the roof and ground as an orphanage near there.

Falling there a blazing mass after being struck by the young aviator's bombs its crew of 28 men were killed, as were also several occupants of the orphanage buildings.

GIVES SOUND ADVICE ON PRICE QUESTION

Manufacturers' Organ Gives Warning
No Price Increase Except For Good Reason

"Industrial Canada," the official organ of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, recently contained a strong editorial on the increase of manufacturers' prices, which has come in Canada industries as a result of the war related customs duties.

The editorial is in part as follows: If the manufacturers of Canada make a general advance in the prices of their goods with the deliberate intention to "share" the whole of the cost 10 per cent tariff increase, they will formulate a policy which will result catastrophically upon themselves.

Such a course is certain to arouse hostility among those consumers who are of the opinion that the tariff was too high before the war was made; and it will chill the warmth with which the remaining consumers have supported the policy of protection.

Creates Confusion.

Now is the time, under the shelter of a slightly increased protection to encourage the habit of using Canadian goods in preference to foreign goods. The main price will give rise to the loss output. The buying power of Canadians at present is restricted and every addition to the selling prices of goods makes it more difficult for consumers to buy them. On the contrary, lower prices will allow a greater volume of sales, will diminish the consumption of raw materials, will give employment to workers and will lighten the grip of Canadian manufacturers upon their home market.

If the manufacturers will concentrate upon the problem of keeping the prices as nearly as possible at the level of the pre-war period, a permanent spell to the gratification of hard-pressed consumers.

Consumers, however, must not hastily conclude that there will be no increase in the prices of manufactured goods. While any general advance, aiming at the unjustifiable absorption of the 10 per cent tariff increase, cannot be too strongly opposed, it is absurd to argue that no prices should be advanced. Each article must be separated from any sweeping general price and dealt with on its own merits. What are the items entering into its cost of production? Have they increased? If they have, it is only fair that the price of the article should be increased. If they are not, then the price of the article should stand.

Influence of War.
There is in some quarters a most unfair attempt being made to lay on the recent tariff measures the entire blame for increased prices in spite of the fact that in countries where no tariff increase have been made, prices are rising. According to the "New York Herald," the average wholesale price of twenty-five food commodities, representing a theoretical family food budget, which was 129 in 1913, 168 in 1914, now stands around 174.

Recently, interruption to communications, shrinkage in production, and other allies of war are sending prices up all over the world. War always increases the cost of living. It would be strange if Canada should escape the general law. We cannot have it both ways. We cannot profit by war high prices for what we have to sell and avoid war high prices for what we have to buy.

A man out of a job, or only partially employed, is a poor statistic. You much prefer, don't you, to deal with customers whom you know are earning their "good" wages in thriving local industries? Their credit is good; they pay their bills.

"Made-in-Canada" and "Made-in-America" - Buying at Home

The Boston "Herald" of February 16th has the following statement, under the heading "Made-in-Canada," in its editorial column:

"Thanks to Canada to the 'Made-in-America' movement in this country, the 'Made-in-Canada' movement and the 'Made-in-America' movement are now being carried on by the people of Canada. The patriotic sentiment of the times gives it an impetus; and as the general business, our manufacturers and exporters will have to put on a little extra steam to meet the new competition. When the war broke out the 'Asquith' 'Made-in-Canada' stamp blossomed like the maple in the store windows of London. Liverpool and other foreign cities. It was a patriotic defiance to the familiar 'Made-in-Germany' stamp which was the first of the kind to become familiar to the world over."

The fact that the papers of the United States and American Consuls are reporting on the effect of the "Made-in-Canada" campaign is the best evidence possible that the "Buy-at-Home" movement is making headway and is carrying the people with it. Americans are shrewd, people commercially, and lost no time in organizing a huge "Made-in-America" publicity campaign, such as the war was, amounting to, as it did, a large part of the flood of imported goods which people of United States have been accustomed to purchase.

"If 'Made-in-America' is good for United States, 'Made-in-Canada' is even better for Canada, a small country which is only in the early stages of its industrial development, and in which the problems of unemployment and reduced buying capacity, as a result of the war, are difficult to handle."

He spent that dollar that same day, Down in the village, store, He gives his little coin a grand new dollar bill. And he's see it no more, But long before the year rolled by, One day he went to a neighbor's order, and received That same one-dollar bill. Once more, he spent that dollar bill, He in his own neighborhood, Where it would do him sit and friend The most amount of good. Four times in two years it came back, As some had pointed will. And each time he'd go out and spend. This marked one-dollar bill. Had he been, was that dollar might be in his town today. But just two years ago He sent it far away.

The people who received it then I know have got it still, For 'twas to a foreign country He sent his dollar bill. General News Notes

From Various Points

Casualty-lists received by the military department this week contain the names of 12 Canadians killed, 28 injured and five missing. This makes the total casualties reported to Ottawa to date 7,442, of whom 1,131 have been killed, 4,781 wounded, while 1,530 are prisoners of war.

An eastern paper refers to the fact that the losses of the Canadian forces at Langemarck were greater than the total losses of both army and navy of the United States during the entire war with Spain. That is some indication of the magnitude of the war.

The Swiss boundary line is the most marked boundary line in the whole world. Not even a Swiss patriot can pass out without being challenged on every side by loaded guns.

Six hundred men clambered for places in the 100th regiment in "Win" riots. These are men who have been deeply stirred with a sense of duty for their country, and are anxious to do their bit. This regiment is going to the front as a unit with the 61st battalion.

Bulgaria, it is reported, is concentrating an army on the Turkish frontier. This has occasioned great alarm in Constantinople, with the result that troops in large numbers are being recalled from the Gallipoli peninsula, and rushed to Adrianople and Kirk Killisen to meet eventualities that are anticipated in that quarter in consequence of threatening aspects on the Bulgarian frontier.

British troops at the Dardanelles have advanced 500 yards along a three mile section of the front. The war office made this announcement, stating that two lines of Turkish trenches had been captured. The enemy suffered heavily.

It is announced that the Germans are sending submarines from Antwerp, down the Scheldt, to the sea. The entry of that river is in the territory of Holland. If the report is true, Dutch neutrality has ceased to exist.

A general Italian advance is taking place across the Isonzo river from Caporetto to the sea, a distance of about 40 miles. The advance is one of importance and hard fighting is taking place at Gradiska and in the vicinity of this town.

It was announced at the admiralty that Zeppelins visited the east coast of England last Sunday evening, dropping incendiary explosives. Five persons were killed and 40 injured. Two fires were caused by incendiary bombs.

"I prophesy that within 60 days the United States, if not actually, will be virtually at war with Germany," said Senator W. E. Borah, of Idaho, one of the prominent figures in the progressive movement in the States, who passed through Calgary on his way to the San Francisco exhibition, by the Pacific coast route.

Apparent authentic information is that Sir Thomas G. Roblin Give Evidence Before Commission

Sir Edmund Roblin in the witness box before the royal commission last Tuesday, according to reports, was destroying all the official records in connection with the contract for $802,000 let to Thomas Kelly & Sons for about half before the last provincial election. Sir Edmund said Mr. Montague, minister of public works, who recommended letting the contract to him after it had been awarded and intimated it was desirable to rescind it. Sir Edmund therefore capitulated to Kelly, who made no objection to surrendering his agreement. In order to "avoid complications," the ex-minister, he decided to destroy all the official records and he had Malcolm McLean collect copies of the order-in-council and bring them to him.

The reason for destroying the contract, said Sir Edmund, was that it had been awarded without the government first getting expert advice. Dr. Montague asserted that unless he could control, supply said, the ex-minister, before such a big contract was awarded, he would take no responsibility for it.

NEW CABINET MEMBERS

WILL POOL SALARIES. According to the Daily Express the members of the coalition cabinet have agreed to arrange their salaries in a coalition basis, that is, all the salaries will be pooled, and then equally divided, the only exceptions being Premier Asquith, who will receive his full salary, as before, and Sir Edward Carson, attorney-general, whose fees will not be included in the pool.

Under this novel scheme each member of the cabinet, roughly speaking, will receive $2,500 ($31,250), instead of some receiving 45,000 and others $2,000 and lesser sums.

Women Shoppers Can do Most For "Made-in-Canada" When They Are Making Purchases

The editor of the "Department Stores Magazine," a United States publication, has a strong article on the "Made-in-Canada" movement, which is a feature of United States commercial life today. Speaking of the places that women occupy in the nation's purchasing, he says:

"Upon the great mass of intelligent American women, who daily stream through the doors of our forty-five hundred department stores, rests a heavy weight of responsibility. It is for them to say whether some of the greatest industries in the country shall suffer or whether they shall come through the crisis stronger and more prosperous than ever."

"America can make everything that is necessary to the life and happiness of any man or woman. The most luxurious and beautiful fabric can be produced here. Our carpets and rugs imitate the sunning of the Oriental weaver and often surpass his work in originality of pattern. The furniture made in America is unsurpassed, and our glass and china compare favorably with the finest made elsewhere."

The remaining three paragraphs are also taken from Mr. Platt's article. In his Canada, we have substituted the word "Canada" for "America," as there is no doubt that what Mr. Platt says about the goods made in United States applies equally as well to those made in Canada. In fact there is an even greater reason why Canada should be loyal to the products made in Canada and her own workshops. Canada is a young country in the early stages of industrial development. It has a small population, spread thinly over a large area. Unless all interests in Canada combine to promote the general welfare, our progress is sure to be much slower than we have been accustomed to during the future years of reconstruction which will inevitably follow this war.

Revised Version

"Made in Canada" should be the motto of every shopper who enters a store. It is more than a mere trade slogan; it is a precept of patriotism. "Made in Canada" means busy factories, it means happy working people in Canada; it means that you are helping thousands of Canadian homes on Saturday night; it means the battlement of the toughest of hard times and the return of prosperity for all of us despite the war. And after the war is over it means a greater Canada than ever before, a Canada that will supply the world and reap the reward of a higher standard of living than that which is being voiced by European cannon.

All this can be accomplished if every purchaser who enters a store will insist on Canadian-made goods. The great merchants are eager to supply this demand, and it is up to the shopper to see that the goods being made in Canada do not lie idle on the shelves.
